SECTION B — SHORT ANSWER

16. Cash to Company is a K-12 entrepreneurship and financial-literacy program led by Cash, an animated coin who asks one question for thirteen years: which people, and how do you know? (Full credit if word-perfect. Partial credit (0.5) if substantively correct with one minor variation.)

17. Any three from: Amazing!, Awesome!, Boss up, Get that bag, Crush it, Everyone can be rich, Anyone can do it, Easy money, Passive income, Just believe, Manifest, Side hustle, Financial freedom, Rise and grind, If they can you can, When you're rich, Game-changer, Disruptive, Unleash your potential, Game-ify your life, Be your own boss, Hack.

18. Any two of the seven: Which people, and how do you know? / Being wrong on Day 1 is the deal. / Revenue is loud. Contribution margin is true. / Honest claims build customers who come back. Tricks build customers who feel taken. / Listening is not a moment. It's a system. / A little less wrong, every week. / Don't sell. Show.

19. Differentiate the path, not the outcome. (Or substantively equivalent — every student arrives at the same strand outcome; the path varies.)

20. Format: tool name + "as of [date]" + license type + source URL. Example: "LibreOffice Calc — as of April 2026, an open-source free tool (libreoffice.org)." Other valid: Google Sheets, Trello, Y Combinator Startup School, Notion (free tier), ClickUp (free tier).

SECTION C — SCENARIOS

21. Sample correct response: - Surface: "Interesting — what does your uncle do for work? And what made him say that?" - Sharpen: "Real numbers — about 16 million Americans are self-employed; about 130 million are employees; about 75% of new ventures fail in the first 10 years. Some self-employed people get rich; some employees get rich; most do neither. What does that suggest?" - Settle: "How would you say your uncle's claim more carefully? Try: 'Some people who start businesses ; some people who work for others .'"

(Full credit if all three steps are present, the sharpen has at least one specific number or fact, and the settle asks the student to articulate the corrected sentence.)

22. Sample correct response: "Great question — but we don't talk specific numbers in Capstones, since some are simulated and some are real. What [child's name] can tell you is which customers they tested and what changed in the design. [Turn to student] — tell us about the persona work?"

(Full credit: redirects without embarrassing the kid, doesn't probe family, gives the student a productive turn.)

23. Sample correct response: "This is exactly what the calibration protocol is for. We pause individual scoring. We pull the rubric anchor papers. We re-read the Criterion 3 anchors at score points 1, 2, and 3. We re-score Sample 1 together. The likely answer: a 1 if no fixed-cost reasoning is present; a 3 requires fixed-cost engagement. We agree on the local convention: 'Criterion 3 score of 3 requires named fixed costs, not just price-cost subtraction.' We write the convention on the back of the rubric. We continue to Sample 2."

(Full credit: references the calibration protocol explicitly, doesn't pull rank, ends with a written convention.)

24. Sample correct response: - A glossary handout with home-language translations for the unit-2 vocabulary (variable cost, fixed cost, contribution margin) — by Friday. - A bilingual buddy assignment (sparingly used; not the de facto translator). - Math-first pacing: let the student do the calculation in numbers, then write the prose explanation second. Allow draft prose in Spanish first.

(Three concrete scaffolds; one each from the ELL 6-8 menu is full credit. Other valid: pre-watching the Cash V2 transcript with home-language translation, Frayer model in pairs, sentence frames.)

25. Sample correct response: "Honest claim check — 'huge' compared to what? 'Everyone' is which people, and how do you know? Walk me through the evidence."

(Full credit: applies the spine question, refuses to validate the hype, redirects to evidence, doesn't moralize.)

After certification

1. Print your `Cash_Certified_Teacher_Certificate.html`. Fill in your name, your school, and the date.
2. Sign the Sensitivity Pledge at the bottom of the certificate.
3. Save your `Cash_Certified_Teacher_Badge.svg` to your email signature, your LinkedIn, your school directory page.
